The handling of student conduct matters at Canadian colleges and universities is a critical risk, and institutions face ever-increasing pressure to process complex matters expeditiously and fairly.

Please join us for a discussion of the student conduct process. Lawyers from the BLG Education Group will address how to approach conduct matters to best support student accountability and learning and a safe learning, working and living environment.

This event is ideal for student conduct practitioners and other higher education administrators responsible for conduct matters at Canadian colleges and universities. We will critically examine the issues that student conduct professionals regularly face and provide practical guidance and correction.

Topics will include:

- The ins and outs of procedural fairness
- Civil liability and sexual violence in higher education
- Navigating expression issues in higher education
- Panel discussion
