Harrison is returning to BLG's Toronto office for his second summer in the corporate group.

Prior to law school, Harrison worked at a tax accounting firm where he gained experience in financial reporting and tax preparation. He has passed Level I of the CFA Program and recently completed an extracurricular financial modeling and valuation course to supplement his understanding of business transactions. While a student at Queen's University, Harrison was a member of the Hiring International Workers Project with Pro Bono Students Canada.

Harrison chose BLG because of its incredible culture, remarkable team, and commitment to excellence. Throughout Harrison's first summer, he was reminded on a daily basis of the inspiring minds around him, confirming that BLG offers a work environment perfectly suited for him.

During his spare time, Harrison enjoys doing crossword and sudoku puzzles. His days do not begin until he has completed the New York Times word games. He also enjoys playing sports, cooking, and trying new restaurants.
