Privacy and Data Protection Luncheon

September 26, 2018
11:00 a.m. - 2:00 p.m. ET

Borden Ladner Gervais LLP
1000 De La Gauchetière Street West Suite 900 Montréal, QC, Canada H3B 5H4

Privacy and data protection continue to be top business and legal risks for Canadian organizations.

Recent legal developments impose significant new restrictions and requirements for the handling of personal information, and expose Canadian organizations to potentially substantial risks and liabilities. For example:

- PIPEDA's new security breach obligations impose reporting, notification and record-keeping obligations on Canadian organizations that suffer a breach of personal information security safeguards.
- New consent guidelines issued by the Privacy Commissioners of Canada, British Columbia and Alberta outline additional requirements (including form and substance requirements for privacy policies and related notifications) so that organizations obtain individual's meaningful consent to the collection, use and disclosure of their personal information.
- The European Union's General Data Protection Regulation (GDPR) imposes stringent personal data handling requirements, with potentially significant fines for non-compliance, on Canadian organizations that have an establishment in the EU or that collect or process EU residents' personal data in connection with business activities or to monitor their behaviour.

During this seminar, you will hear from our leading privacy and cybersecurity professionals — Éloïse Gratton, Elisa Henry and Bradley Freedman.
