The past 18 months have been a whirlwind with the economic surge in bitcoin and other digital currencies. As a result, regulators are having to re-examine how trades and deals are done and whether these cryptocurrencies qualify as securities. Carol Derk, the National Leader of the firm's Derivatives Group and a member of the firm's Cryptocurrency and Blockchain Group, explains some of the major issues surrounding the use of blockchain and cryptocurrencies. In this video, Carol looks at how the traditional business model is shifting to accommodate this newer digital asset model. The landscape is changing. BLG is here to ensure your business stays on top of new technologies, regulations and the revolutionary way money is being handled.
