Charities & Not-For-Profit

Noah's tax practice focuses on domestic and cross border tax planning, owner operator business structures, and the unique tax and regulatory needs of charities and not for profit organizations. He provides clear and practical advice to help clients navigate intricate tax rules and make well informed decisions with confidence.

Noah works with individuals, families, private corporations, and investors to develop tax efficient structures and to navigate the tax considerations that arise in fast moving transactions. Drawing on deep experience in inbound and outbound planning, he helps clients confidently navigate the complexities of doing business in Canada.

He is a trusted advisor to entrepreneurs and family run businesses on a wide range of wealth management issues, including succession planning, corporate reorganizations, shareholder compensation, and charitable giving, with an emphasis on long-term stability and tax efficiency.

As part of his practice, Noah provides strategic representation to clients before the tax courts and in negotiations with Revenu Québec and the Canada Revenue Agency.

Noah has spent his entire career at BLG, having first joined the firm as a summer student in 2017.

Experience
