Andrew is an articling student at BLG's Toronto Office, he is primarily focused on litigation.

During law school was a member of the Law Journal and the Negotiation Team as well as a volunteer coordinator for the Pickleball Club. He earned part of his degree at Washburn Law in the United States and spent his earlier summers working in white collar crime enforcement for the State Attorney General before coming back to Canada and joining BLG. Prior to law school he was a trial assistant and litigation consultant, working in medical malpractice trials all over the United States.

Andrew chose BLG after spending a summer working with some of the extremely talented associates and partners and being given opportunities to explore the diverse practice areas and welcoming work environment.

When Andrew isn't working or studying, he is often playing tabletop games with friends, riding his bike, reading history books, or working on a Lego project.
