Abby is a regulatory commercial lawyer who advises clients on consumer law and complex compliance issues. She provides strategic guidance on regulatory requirements across diverse sectors, ensuring businesses remain compliant while achieving their objectives.

Abby's knowledge spans a wide range of areas, including licensing requirements, insurance matters such as warranties and captives, health and professional corporations, and advertising and marketing regulations. She also has a strong interest in transportation and maritime transactions, including vessel registration, financing, and licensing.

Before joining BLG as an associate, Abby worked in the claims department of an insurance brokerage, and previously served as both a summer student and an articling student at BLG.
