Insurance Claim Defence
Commercial Litigation
Disputes
Municipal Liability
Police Law & Liability

Christine focuses her practice on insurance defence, advising clients in personal injury, occupiers' liability and product liability matters. She defends claims against municipalities, police, insurance companies and their insureds in matters relating to property damage, non-repair of roads and sidewalks, and motor vehicle accidents. She also defends municipal police services from claims alleging negligent investigation, malicious prosecution and Charter violations.

While in law school, Christine participated in the International Criminal Court moot and advanced to the semifinals in the international round in The Hague, Netherlands.

Christine summered and articled with the firm before joining as an associate in 2019.
