Maude Sirois specializes in health law. She represents health care institutions in cases involving professional medical and hospital liability.

She holds a Master's degree in Health Law and Policy. In particular, she pleads before the Québec courts in matters of consent to care and confinement in an institution.

Prior to joining BLG, Maude practised with a firm specialized in health and labour law.

As part of her studies, she was a research assistant in health law and completed a hospital internship in clinical and organizational ethics.
