Helder represents and advises companies in a variety of legal matters related to labour and employment law, including:

- labour standards;
- occupational health and safety;
- workers' compensation;
- pensions;
- pay equity;
- analysis, interpretation and negotiation of collective agreements.

A gifted speaker, Helder regularly pleads before the Tribunal administratif du travail.

His experience as an actuary makes him a valuable resource for employers and pension plan administrators for questions including creating, managing and merging pension plans.

Prior to joining BLG, Helder represented several construction companies and worked at a major national firm.

He has leveraged the knowledge he gained on health and safety and labour relations during his time at a Québec construction association in several matters.
