Candice Hévin specializes in privacy and commercial law. She advises emerging companies, banking institutions and other established businesses in different industries on a various range of issues, including compliance with Canadian privacy laws requirements and drafting privacy policies and contractual agreements.

Prior to joining BLG, Candice practiced as a lawyer for a national law firm where she advised clients of different industries with respect to privacy, data protection, biometrics, contractual commercial and regulatory matters, as well as contractual and due diligence matters in mergers and acquisitions and private equity files.

Candice also worked in France for several years as in-house legal counsel in multinationals and a consulting firm where her practice focused on drafting and negotiation of contracts, as well as privacy and regulatory matters.
