Patrick has a robust and varied disputes practice. He focuses his work primarily in the areas of appellate and judicial review, Indigenous law and investor/state arbitration. He is recognized as one of the country's leading Indigenous law lawyers.

Patrick is an appointed Fellow of the American College of Trial Lawyers, a status reserved for less than one per cent of all practicing lawyers of any state or province, and was appointed Queen's Counsel in 1998.

Before being called to the bar, Patrick clerked with the British Columbia Court of Appeal. He is a frequent lecturer on appellate advocacy and developments in Indigenous law.

Patrick provides legal services through a Law Corporation.

Experience

- Counsel for numerous commercial clients and public bodies in the appellate courts, including many cases before the Court of Appeal for British Columbia and the Supreme Court of Canada.
- Counsel at all levels of court for the Crown and for private clients on Aboriginal rights and title claims made by First Nations.
- Assisted counsel to the Government of Mexico in the conduct of the defence of a number of Chapter 11 Investor-State arbitrations initiated against the Government of Mexico.
