

Autonomous Vehicles

Anticipating and adapting to technological innovation is a business imperative. It's essential to have a skilled, future-minded legal team who can identify complex trends and anticipate potential impacts of technological change across all industries related to autonomous and connected vehicles.

We understand that entire industries are being disrupted and redefined by autonomous and connected vehicles. Talent pools, vendor relationships and supply chains are being altered, while entrants are challenging traditional business models and creating previously unimagined markets. Cities and governments must rethink legislation, regulation and infrastructure, while the existing framework for liability has already been challenged.

We are highly skilled in the field and well-versed in related disciplines, including engineering and technology. We have a firm grasp of the issues associated with the adoption of increasingly autonomous and connected vehicles, including:

- cars
- trucks
- buses
- ships
- trains
- aircraft

Our services and areas of expertise benefit OEMs, parts suppliers, tech, municipalities, telecoms, aviation, rail, maritime and others in the following areas:

- product liability
- regulatory changes
- privacy
- cybersecurity
- intellectual property
- insurance
- dispute resolution
- mergers and acquisitions
- contract and competition law
- class actions
