Jordan's practice focuses on energy, utilities and pipeline regulation, and related appellate matters.

Jordan advises and represents proponents and investors in energy infrastructure projects, including renewable energy and energy storage projects, in respect of facility approvals, regulatory compliance, transactional due diligence and environmental matters. He has extensive experience in rate regulation, including cost of service and performance-based rates and the negotiated settlement of rate applications, and represents clients in regulated industries in respect of tariff approvals and related proceedings.

Jordan brings a depth of experience in all facets of the energy industry in Alberta and at the federal level.

Jordan provides legal services through a Law Corporation.
