Remsoft Acquires INFLOR, Expanding Global Forest Intelligence Platform

Remsoft Inc., a global leader in Forest Intelligence solutions, completed its acquisition of INFLOR, a Brazilian forestry technology company specializing in forest management systems with over 20 years of experience serving customers across South America, North America, and Europe.

The acquisition advances Remsoft's vision of a connected, cloud-based Forest Intelligence Platform that brings together data, planning, optimization, and operational execution to power smarter decisions across the global forestry value chain. The transaction, supported by private equity firm Banneker Partners, has allowed Remsoft to advance its ongoing growth strategy to build a unified, cloud-based ecosystem that connects every stage of the forest value chain through targeted investments and global expertise.

BLG represented Remsoft with a team led by partner Frazer House that included associate Akaash Viswanathan (Corporate/M&A), Danny Lang (Tax), and Eric Boehm and Shane Morganstein (Information Technology).
