Dayeon is a dual-qualified senior associate in our Disputes Group. Her practice focuses on complex domestic and international disputes, particularly in the construction, infrastructure, aviation, mining and telecommunications sectors, as well as the enforcement of arbitral awards in Canada.

Dayeon regularly advises owners, contractors and other project participants on large infrastructure projects, including contractor claims, construction defects, project delays, bidding processes and dispute avoidance strategies, and has represented clients before various dispute resolution boards.

As arbitration counsel, Dayeon has represented clients in ad hoc and institutional arbitrations, including proceedings under the ICC and UNCITRAL Rules. She has represented the Government of Canada in investor-state arbitrations under the ICSID and UNCITRAL Rules arising under bilateral investment treaties and free trade agreements. She has also advised Canada on the negotiation of international trade and investment agreements, and on its obligations under international trade law, including matters involving economic sanctions and national security.

Called to the bars of Québec and New York, Dayeon is fluent in English, French and Korean, and has working proficiency in Mandarin. Prior to joining BLG, she worked with the international arbitration group of a leading international law firm in Dubai, and clerked for the Honourable Pierre Nollet of the Superior Court of Québec.
