Our ability to make a positive impact in the communities in which we live and work is directly connected to how we cultivate our relationships, both inside and outside of the office.

As Canada’s Law Firm, we have an opportunity and a responsibility to use our knowledge, skills and platform to help address important social issues and help shape the future. Through our pro bono work, charitable donations, academic scholarships, volunteerism and mentoring and coaching programs, we are leaders in the communities we serve.

Making a difference in communities across Canada

Strong communities are the cornerstone of healthy communities, successful businesses and a prosperous country. Throughout the firm’s history, members of BLG have consistently given back through the contribution of skills, experience, time and charitable donations.

Each year we support nearly 200 different non-profit organizations, ranging from local charities and grassroots community initiatives to international charitable missions.

Improving access to justice

Through our pro bono work, we use our legal skills and expertise to ensure everyone has access to and understands the legal system. It is about equity, and we are proud of the role we play in upholding justice and providing access to the justice system.

We draw from our cross-practice and cross-country firm to provide over 20,000 pro bono hours of legal support to nearly 200 not-for-profits and vulnerable individuals.
